

Paul McGreavy

Paul is an experienced youth expedition leader, traveller and outdoor enthusiast. He has led several expeditions to places such as the Bolivian Andes, the Icelandic icecaps, the Karakoram and Tian Shan Mountains, the Taklamakan and Gobi Deserts in China.

Paul and Shanksy's pony in China

He has worked with both adult and youth groups in various areas around the world.

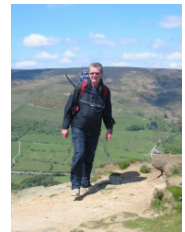

Ever the careful negotiator!

Paul is an experienced mountaineer, who in recent years has taken to travelling using canoes, kayaks, bikes, skis, horses, camels and Shanksy's Pony, (mainly because his knees are wearing out). He enjoys travelling in a range of different environments and meeting the wonderful people who live there. The highlight of the last few years has been riding on mountain ponies for almost two weeks with the Khazak herders of the Tian Shan in Xinjiang, China.

A recent and developing interest is scuba diving. Over the last few years Paul has dived in various areas of the UK, (Brrrrr!), the Mediterranean Sea and the Red Sea. His diving ambition is to dive with whale sharks somewhere warm.

He lives in the Derbyshire village of Hope, (some say that he's beyond hope), and is a long time member of the Edale Mountain Rescue Team.

Hiking in Hope!